

STAND ALONE OR COME HOME

Senator Mark Hatfield understood that faith in Jesus Christ has implications beyond issues of personal behavior. Explore Hatfield's life and public service to see how his consistent value of human life, care for creation, and commitment to social justice mark him as clearly evangelical and progressive.

All of his life, Mark Hatfield led his state and country by personal demonstration of faith in God and country. Lon Fendall has captured, in a superior manner, the spirit and the accomplishments of this talented public servant.

Gerry Frank ★ former chief of staff to Senator Mark O. Hatfield

A must-read for those who want to understand the role of Christian presence in government... Hatfield's mission was not to "Christianize" government but rather to bring a Christian understanding of issues into the governmental processes.

Myron S. Augsburger ★ president emeritus and professor emeritus, Eastern Mennonite University

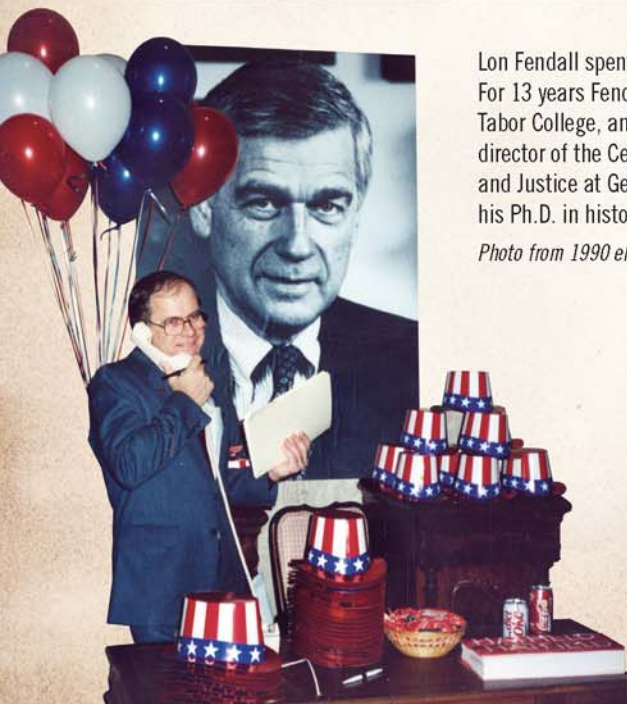

This well-documented book explores the moral and Christian principles that undergirded Hatfield's public career, and also shows how such principles might help others to engage in public service with higher ends in view.

Mark A. Noll ★ Francis A. McAnaney professor of history, University of Notre Dame

Mark Hatfield is significant because he carved out in his day a creative path between the old options of conservative and liberal. Because Hatfield was at one and the same time a progressive in political thought and an evangelical in religious faith, he gives us today new ways of looking at the interface between politics and religion.

Richard J. Foster ★ founder of Renovaré, and author of various books including Celebration of Discipline

See complete statements and other reader comments on the first pages.

Lon Fendall spent ten years on the staff of Senator Mark Hatfield. For 13 years Fendall was academic dean at Wilmington College, Tabor College, and George Fox University. He currently serves as director of the Center for Global Studies and the Center for Peace and Justice at George Fox University, Newberg, Oregon. He earned his Ph.D. in history from the University of Oregon.

Photo from 1990 election-night victory party

B
BARCLAY
PRESS

www.barclaypress.com

ISBN 978-1-59498-015-2

9 781594 980152